Jayden D'SOUZA

At 15, Jayden Julian Mael D'Souza is driven by curiosity and a passion for making a difference. Born in Nairobi on 6 June 2011, he has always loved understanding how things work and improving them.

By age 6, he was creating videos; at 10, solving a Rubik's Cube in under a minute; and at 12, designing his own website and building a gaming PC from scratch.

Beyond technology, Jayden embraces endurance and service. At 14, he cycled from Nairobi to the Maasai Mara to raise funds for a school for Maasai children.

Now he's preparing to cycle to the foothills of Mount Kenya, demonstrating that determination, innovation, and purpose can inspire meaningful change, let's make it happen.

THEME: RESPONSIBLE USE OF SOCIAL MEDIA.

Hey Students! Let's Talk About Using Social Media Smarter and Safer

In today's digital world, social media isn't just about sharing funny videos or posting selfies — it's a powerful tool for connecting, learning, and expressing who you are. Platforms like Instagram, TikTok, Snapchat, Twitter, and Facebook are everywhere, and they give us amazing opportunities to showcase our talents, stay connected with friends, and explore new ideas.

But with great power comes great responsibility. How we use social media says a lot about us, so it's important to be smart, respectful, and safe online. Here are some tips to help you make the most of social media while staying safe and responsible:

1. Think Before You Post

Before hitting "send" or "share," ask yourself:

Is this respectful and kind?

Would I want my family, teachers, or future college or employer to see this?

Does this represent the best version of me?

Remember, everything you post creates your digital footprint — a trail of info about you online. Think of it as your online reputation that lasts forever.

THINK BEFORE YOU

Is It TRUE?

Is It HELPFUL?

Is It INSPIRING?

Is It NECESSARY?

Is It KIND?

Active versus Passive Digital Footprint

What's a digital footprint? It's the record of everything you do online, from websites you visit to posts and comments you make.

- Passive footprint: Data collected without you knowing, like ads following you around.
- Active footprint: What you choose to share — posts, pictures, comments.

Why care? Your digital footprint can affect your reputation — like whether someone might want to work with or accept you in the future. So, always post responsibly!

2. Treat Others with Respect

Just like in real life, kindness matters online. Don't bully, tease, or share hurtful comments. Remember: behind every profile is a person with feelings. Be a digital role model! Support friends, celebrate their successes, and spread positivity.

3. Protect Your Privacy

Be careful about what personal info you share — like your address, phone number, or school. Once it's online, it's hard to remove completely. Think twice before posting details that could put your safety at risk.

Tip: Keep your profiles private and review your privacy settings regularly.

4. Be a Positive Influence

Use social media to lift others up! Share inspiring stories, encourage your friends, and celebrate each other's achievements. Your words and posts can make a difference.

5. Balance Screen Time and Real Life

Social media is fun, but don't forget to enjoy the real world: hang out with friends, play sports, read, or pursue hobbies. Moderation keeps you healthy and happy.

6. Speak Up and Seek Help

If you see someone being bullied, harassed, or if something makes you uncomfortable online — tell a trusted adult. Reporting problems helps keep everyone safe and ensures that social media remains a positive space.

Remember: Your online behaviour reflects who you are. When you use social media with respect, kindness, and responsibility, you're not just protecting yourself — you're helping create a safe and inspiring digital community for everyone.

As responsible students of Oshwal Academy Junior High, let us all make smart choices online and show the world the best version of ourselves!

OSHVAL ACADEMY JUNIOR HIGH THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

THEME:

The Climb

A short story about never giving up.

Leo loved adventure. One Saturday, he decided to climb a nearby hill. It looked high and challenging, but Leo was determined to reach the top.

Halfway up, Leo got tired. The path was steep, and his legs ached. He thought of giving up.

Then Leo remembered his goal. He took a deep breath, rested for a while, and told himself,

Leo kept going, step by step. It was still hard, but he stayed focused. He reminded himself why he started.

Finally, Leo reached the top! He felt tired but so proud. His determination had paid off.

MORAL OF THE STORY:

Determination helps you keep going, even when things are difficult. With patience and perseverance, you can achieve your goals.
